Recruitment & Retention of Engineering Technology Students

This monograph presents the results of two research studies and focus group and panel discussions on recruitment and retention of students in engineering technology programs at the two-year college level.

In addition to an in-depth examination of opinions and attitudes of first- and second-year engineering technology students and engineering technology faculty and administrators, the research takes a closer look at recruitment and retention of women and minority students. Research findings offer another tool in developing effective student retention strategies.

Printed copies of the 56-page monograph are available through the SC ATE Center of Excellence at a cost of $15 each.
